Fort McCoy's mission is to support the readiness of the force by serving as a training center and a support site for force-generation missions.

As a Total Force Training Center, Fort McCoy's primary responsibility is to support the training and readiness of military personnel and units of all branches and components of America's armed forces. Fort McCoy is a Secondary Mobilization Force Generation Installation equipped to support contingency operations as ordered.

As a world-class installation, Fort McCoy's continuing goal is to provide excellent customer service and facilities and to enhance the quality of life for all who train, work or live here. The Fort McCoy community truly is unique, with active, reserve and civilian components working together for the betterment of all facets of life at the installation.

Training Opportunities

Located in the heart of the upper Midwest, Fort McCoy is the only U.S. Army installation in Wisconsin. Fort McCoy lives its motto, "Total Force Training Center." The installation has provided support and facilities for the field and classroom training of more than 100,000 military personnel from all services each year since 1984.

The Fort McCoy complex is situated on 60,000 acres, 46,000 of which are available for maneuver and training. Fort McCoy's superb location, quality terrain and four-season climate provide units with significant year-round training opportunities.

Fort McCoy provides reserve- and active-component forces with the networked, integrated, interoperable training resources required to support the Army's training strategies with a full spectrum of facilities, ranges, and training areas.

Fort McCoy offers an environment for units to train on unified land operations across the range of military operations, allowing simultaneous conduct of individual- through brigade-level training, static live fire, maneuver live fire and force-on-force in both urban and unimproved terrain.

Fort McCoy has 30 live-fire ranges, 17 of which are automated or instrumented; 21 artillery firing points, 12 mortar firing points and an 8,000-acre impact area. Ranges supporting collective live-fire training include two multi-purpose training ranges, a convoy live-fire range, an infantry squad battle course, a multi-purpose machine-gun range, two live-fire shoot houses and a live-fire breach facility. Individual qualification ranges include facilities for modified record-fire, automated record-fire, and 10-meter/25-meter basic rifle, as well as a qualification training facility with modified record-fire and combat pistol/military police qualification-course capability.

Fort McCoy has extensive urban and rural training facilities, including two fully instrumented urban training sites; a 25-building Combined Arms Collective Training Facility (CACTF); a 20-building Collective Training Facility; and three wireless instrumented Combat in the Cities facilities with a total of 309 buildings.

These co-located facilities provide an urban training area with a continuous 2.4-kilometer capability for mounted and dismounted urban training scenarios. Three after-action review facilities support training at these sites.

To provide rural training capability, seven training areas were constructed, which include walled farm villages with planted crops, and one is instrumented with wireless technology.

An urban assault course and two live-fire shoot houses round out the urban training capability.

Specialized training sites include an Unmanned Aerial Systems strip, a semi-improved airstrip with a Seizure/Forced-Entry training site, a Search/Site Exploitation Facility, two tunnel systems, an engineer water-bridging site, and two wireless, instrumented Home Station Training Lanes (HSTL). Each 8-kilometer HSTL includes overpasses, bridges, canals, six urban villages, traffic circles, guard rails, culverts, and divided roadways.

Looking to the future, Fort McCoy is prepared to meet the training needs of the Army in the 21st century.

More than $38 million was invested improving and upgrading the Range Complex in 2012, including a Known Distance range, an Automated Record Fire range and the CACTF.

Fort McCoy also is "home" to a number of Army, Department of Defense and state activi-

GARRISON FLAGPOLE

HISTORY

Serving America's armed forces since 1909

Fort McCoy is named for Robert Bruce McCoy.

The son of a Civil War captain, McCoy was a prominent local resident who, throughout his lifetime, served as a lawyer, district attorney, county judge and mayor of Sparta, Wis.

He reached the rank of major general during his 31 years of distinguished military service, which included service in the Spanish-American War, the police action in Mexico, and World War I.

McCoy returned from the Spanish-American War with a dream. He knew that as warfare became increasingly more modern, larger and more-powerful guns would be developed, and training would be emphasized. He envisioned these changes would require larger training areas, and, by 1905, he had acquired approximately 4,000 acres of land in the Sparta area.

Maj. Samuel Allen of the 7th Field Artillery at Fort Snelling, Minn., also admired the terrain of the Sparta area for its training value. September 1905 marked the first use of the land for military purposes. McCoy invited Allen's unit to put his family's ranch to the test during 16 days of training.

As a result of the 16-day test, Allen recommended to an Army review board that a large piece of land be purchased for an artillery camp. Approximately 14,200 acres of land, including McCoy's 4,000 acres, were purchased in 1909. The resulting parcel was called the "Sparta Maneuver Tract."

The Sparta Maneuver Tract was divided approximately in half by the Chicago, Milwaukee, St. Paul and Pacific Railroad. The maneuver camp situated on the northern half of the parcel was referred to as Camp Emory Upton, while that to the south was known as Camp Robinson.

In 1910, the War Department authorized $40,000 for construction and improvements to the area. Within that same year, the reservation was renamed Camp Bruce E. McCoy, in honor of the Civil War captain. The camp retained that name until Nov. 19, 1926, when it officially was designated as Camp McCoy in honor of Maj. Gen. Robert B. McCoy, who had died that same year.

Nearly 9,500 acres of land were acquired from the Department of Agriculture in 1938-39. From 1940-1942, an additional 37,437 acres were acquired by a directive from the Secretary of War. These additions included construction of the large, triangular-shaped cantonment area, much of which still exists today.

The "New Camp" officially was inaugurated Aug. 30, 1942. Total cost for the construction was estimated at $30 million, and the camp capacity was set at 35,000.

Camp McCoy was used as a training facility for many World War II units, including the 2nd Infantry Division, the 76th Infantry Division and the 100th Infantry Battalion, which was comprised of Hawaii National Guardsmen of Japanese ancestry. The post also served as a prisoner-of-war and enemy-alien prison camp during this time.

1ST ARTILLERY BAND AT CAMP ROBINSON, 1909

Aside from temporary lulls, the installation has been in almost constant use since its founding in 1909 and has provided artillery and maneuver training opportunities for millions of military personnel from all services.

Camp McCoy was aligned under U.S. Army Forces Command July 1, 1973, and officially was re-designated as Fort McCoy Sept. 30, 1974.

In 1990-91, during Operations Desert Shield/Storm, Soldiers from 74 separate units and their equipment were deployed and redeployed at Fort McCoy.

From June 1991 through June 1992, the post also completed Operation Desert Fix, which was one of the largest reserve-component equipment demobilization/repair missions in the Army. During Desert Fix, Fort McCoy was responsible for inventorying, inspecting, repairing and returning more than a division-and-a-half's worth of equipment to 121 owning units located throughout a nine-state area.

The 1990s ushered in the first great construction growth since construction of the cantonment area in 1942. From 1990 through 2012, more than $317 million in new construction contracts were awarded, the majority to regional firms.

Training levels at Fort McCoy reached record proportions in fiscal year 2000, with 149,432 personnel participating. The installation has provided support and facilities for the training of more than 100,000 personnel annually since 1984.

Fort McCoy was aligned under the U.S. Army Reserve Command in 1993.

Fort McCoy was realigned under what is now known as the Installation Management Command in 2002.

Today, Fort McCoy's primary mission is to support the readiness of the force by serving as a training center and a support site for power-projection missions.

The installation has served in a continuing capacity as an Army power-projection site by processing and preparing military personnel for duty in overseas contingency operations.

From Sept. 11, 2001 through Dec. 30, 2011, 140,197 military personnel from 2,416 units mobilized or demobilized at Fort McCoy during the installation's efforts to support the Global War on Terror.

Today the post provides full-scale support to its customers at each juncture of its training triad — Transient, Institutional and Exercise.

(For more photographs and information on Fort McCoy's history, please see "Fort McCoy History & Heritage," which is available on the installation or online at <http://www.mccoy.army.mil/AboutUs/History/FMCHistHrtg.pdf>.)
